Dear Community and Corporate Partner,

Academy of Scholars Leadership and Learning Center is a private, diploma-granting microschool located in St. Louis, Missouri. Founded in 2020, the Academy provides a structured secondary education that integrates leadership development, entrepreneurship, financial literacy, and applied STEM innovation.

As we prepare for our 2026 program expansion, we are strengthening our STEM and innovation pathways through the launch of robotics, applied engineering programming, and aquaponics-based sustainability systems. These initiatives expand hands-on opportunities in engineering design, environmental science, chemistry, and systems thinking while strengthening applied problem-solving skills.

Our scholars were recognized as Regional Future City Competition winners, demonstrating excellence in engineering design and sustainable infrastructure modeling. We are building on that momentum to deepen STEM access and broaden applied learning experiences.

In addition, our student-led initiative, Eat Green Grow Green, integrates environmental science, entrepreneurship, and community engagement to address food access through sustainable gardening education and leadership development. The addition of aquaponics will further strengthen this initiative by incorporating advanced water systems and sustainable food production models.

We are currently seeking community and corporate partners to support:

- Robotics and engineering program expansion
- Aquaponics system development
- STEM equipment and technology acquisition
- Competition participation and innovation initiatives
- Entrepreneurship and financial literacy programming
- Student scholarship opportunities
- Community sustainability efforts

To support this expansion, we offer the following structured sponsorship opportunities:
